"MAKING RICHARDSON HOME" IS THEME

OF ANNUAL STATE OF THE CITY ADDRESS AT EISEMANN CENTER

The Eisemann Center was the setting for the City's annual State of the City Address, presented Jan. 26 by Mayor Paul Voelker and the Richardson City Council. During the address, Mayor Voelker highlighted the City's recent accomplishments, and spoke about some of the things he is looking forward to in 2022.

"The theme of tonight's State of the City Address is "Making Richardson Home," Mayor Voelker said during the address. "During these past few years, home has not only been where the heart is. For many, it has become where the office is as well. What makes a place home is fairly basic. It's where you feel safe. It's where you feel connected to others. And, where you gather to raise a family or spend time with friends. What we are going to present to you tonight is the work being done that makes Richardson a great place for all these things, and more."

One of the highlights Mayor Voelker spoke about was the new Richardson IQ®, a 1,200-acre area in Central Richardson that is home to 20 percent of the City's employment base.

"Almost three-quarters of a century ago, this area housed some of the country's leading telecommunication companies," he said. "Today, their offspring remain. We are working to strengthen this area through collaborations with business organizations and institutions like the University of Texas at Dallas. And the type of work we are doing in the Richardson IQ® is focused on making this area a premier technology hub in the region and the state. With the potential of being the strength of this community in the decades-and even generations to come."

Mayor Voelker also spoke about the City's partnership with DART, noting that 2021 was the 25th anniversary of DART's light rail operations and that this year is the 20th anniversary of light rail in Richardson. Light rail, the mayor noted, has spurred amazing development and redevelopment opportunities in the city and that he expects the Silver Line, which is set for completion in 2024 will connect Richardson to DFW Airport and Downtown Fort Worth, to do more of the same.

COVID-19 was also addressed, with Mayor Voelker thanking first responders and front-line medical workers for their hard work throughout the pandemic. He noted that they have seen a side to COVID's impacts that most people will never know.

As the address concluded, Mayor Voelker spoke about what there is to look forward to in 2022.

"[2022] will be a big year for infrastructure projects across the community," he said. "Of primary importance for us will be the work to achieve the projects approved by voters in the 2021 Bond Program and the implementation of projects to achieve our newly adopted Council goals. ... We are also very excited about the newly developed CORE Area. This area is beginning its transformation and our newly reconstructed Main Street was a central part to its redevelopment. ... Ladies and gentlemen, that is why I can stand before you and be proud to report the State of our City is strong. And why I can say we are one of the few places in North Texas that's the best to make a home."

BOUNDARY COMMISSION APPOINTED PUBLIC HEARING TO COME

Last month, the City Council be nondiscriminatory. appointed the City Plan Commission to serve as the Council District Boundary Commission. Over the course of several meetings, including at least one public hearing, the Commission will review various options for updating the City's Council District boundaries. Federal regulations require that the population distribution among City Council districts be approximately equal and that district boundaries

The City Charter requires that the City Council appoint a commission every 10 years (after the U.S. Census is complete) to review the district boundaries and ensure population equality. Current district boundaries must be realigned because population growth in some areas of the City has led to an imbalance in the population distribution among districts. Following their public hearing, the Commission will forward their recommended Council boundaries to the City Council for review and a public hearing before finalizing the new boundaries.

New district boundaries must be approved by the City Council no later than July 24.

One of my favorites nights of the year comes in late January when I deliver the annual State of the City Address. Last month, we held the event at the Eisemann Center, which is the traditional home of the State of the City. It was exciting to be able to have an in-person event again after the 2021 address was forced to go virtual due to COVID-19.

The theme of the address was "Making Richardson Home," and throughout the evening we shared some of the things we have here in Richardson that make it one of the best places in the Metroplex to call home.

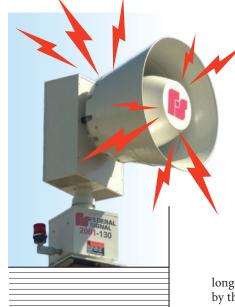

One of the highlights of 2021 was the passage of the 2021 Bond Program. Voters approved $190 million in funding for projects covering renovation, repair and maintenance projects across the city. The majority of the money will go to street, sidewalk and alley repair, but the program also includes renovations to several facilities and projects to help prevent flooding.

development projects: The CORE District and the Richardson IQ®. The CORE District includes the Belt + Main development that broke ground last April, as well as our newly renovated Main Street area, which we celebrated at our inaugural Main Street Festival last October. Big things are also underway in The IQ®, which is well on its way to becoming one of the premier technology hubs in Texas. With so many exciting things going on, it was tough to recognize everyone, but we were able to show our appreciation for local first responders and front-line health care workers, as well as local educators who work daily to make sure our great resource, our children, are on the right path. Richardson would not be the place it is without these people. If you couldn't attend the address in longer siren tests as recommended by the manufacturer. Sustained tests are needed to fully cycle equipment and maintain battery life.

As a reminder, residents are not expected to hear these sirens from inside a house or building. Their primary purpose is to move people indoors and allow them to seek shelter and look for more information. A battery-operated All Hazards NOAA weather radio and cell phone alert apps provide indoor alerts when the TV is off, when many residents are sleeping or when the power is out.

Outdoor tests will be canceled if there is inclement weather or overcast skies in the area during the time of the test.

CITY OF RICHARDSON TEAMS UP WITH MULTICULTURAL GROUPS TO CO-HOST CHINESE NEW YEAR FESTIVAL AT DFW CHINATOWN ON SATURDAY, FEB. 5

Throughout the day, festival-goers can sample cuisine and beverages from more than 20 area establishments representing Richardson's Chinatown, Interurban, Downtown, Heights and Lockwood neighborhoods, including foods and specialty teas from regions throughout Asia, as well as culinary offerings, baked goods and treats from a variety of other local favorites. Chef Andrew Chen of Monkey King Noodle Company will offer a demonstration on noodle pulling, also known as La Mian, and a key element of the Chinese New Year. Participating CORE District restaurants located outside of Chinatown will also display red lanterns as part of the celebration, with many offering specials throughout the day.

The family-friendly festival will include a variety of historical and symbolic Chinese New Year activities and demonstrations such as decorative paper cutting featuring characters and imagery; calligraphy, one of the oldest Chinese art forms; the traditional passing of red envelopes, representing good luck and prosperity; lantern painting, one of the most well-recognized trademarks of Chinese culture; and numerous displays for photo opportunities located throughout the festival. As a special treat, children will have the opportunity to design and create paper tiger lanterns to celebrate the Year of the Tiger, the Chinese lunar symbol for 2022 and the king of all beasts in China representing speed, strength and power.

Festival attendees will also be treated to various Chinese New Year traditions, including colorful roaming lion and dragon dances performed by Wag Tao Kung Fu. The lion dance is recognized for providing luck and happiness, as are Chinese dragons, whose performance movements demonstrate their power and dignity. Several other dance performances will be displayed through the festival, including the popular folk umbrella dance, originating from China's Han dynasty; fan dances, a celebration of Chinese beauty, grace and delicacy; and Tibetan dances, lively masked and costumed dances associated with some sects of Tibetan Buddhism and Buddhist festivals.

Musical performances from the University of North Texas Chinese String Orchestra and Zhang's Sisters will highlight the day, as will musicians playing Guzheng instruments, or zithers, which trace their origins to China before the sixth century B.C. A Cheongsam fashion show will exhibit the traditional dresses of the Chinese Manchu region, modernized by Shanghai socialites in the early 20th century. The various forms of kung fu, a Chinese martial arts specialty, will also be featured during demonstrations at the festival.

With a focus on transit riders working non-traditional hours, all local DART bus routes will provide service seven days a week between the hours of 5 a.m. and midnight at a minimum. An essential part of the new bus network is the expansion of GoLink, DART's on-demand, curbto-curb microtransit service solution that operates in zones across the DART service area. Two GoLink zones are located in Richardson, Central Richardson (Zone 8) and East Telecom (Zone 10). GoLink offers service with connections to DART transit facilities as well as anywhere within each specified zone and is available to customers at no additional cost with a valid DART fare.

CITY'S WINTER WEATHER PREPARATIONS

DART GOLINK ZONES ACTIVATED

One year ago this month, ice bridges, major roads, intersections and snow covered much of Texas as temperatures in Richardson stayed well below freezing for a week straight, bottoming out at 1 degree on Feb. 16. The City's sanding trucks were deployed prior to the temperatures dropping, but the preparations for severe winter weather actually began long before the storm was in the forecast.

The sanding trucks are managed by street maintenance workers from the Public Services Department who stockpile sand throughout the year for use in icy conditions. When ice builds up and causes dangerous driving conditions, crews spread sand on several high priority areasand hospital driveways. School zones are sanded upon special request. The sand increases vehicle traction, but drivers are still urged to drive cautiously.

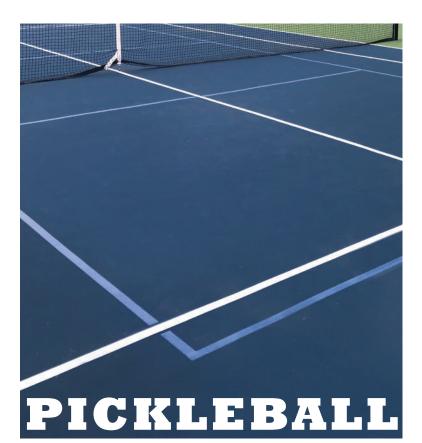

Members of the parks maintenance staff also work year-round preparing for cold weather. Throughout the year, crews prune questionable tree limbs (those with fracture lines, indicating a weak spot that could easily break during a storm) in the parks and along hike-and-bike trails. While the trees may appear bare after pruning, most will fill back in after a few growing seasons.

The work is not done after an ice storm passes. Parks crews have sweeper trucks to clean up sand from roadways, but even with multiple trucks working six days per week, it can take time to remove it all. Workers from the Solid Waste division's Brush and Bulky Item Collection (BABIC) service also are busy following ice storms, picking up fallen limbs and other storm debris in neighborhoods and commercial areas.

To request BABIC pickup, use the MyRichardson App, call 972-744-4111 or fill out an online form at www.cor.net/BABIC. Curbside pickup is available on your designated recycling day (as long as the request is made by 11:59 p.m. the night before).

Select tennis courts at both Woodland and Terrace parks were recently painted with pickleball lines, allowing residents to play pickleball both outdoors at the parks or inside at the two recreation centers.

NEW PICKLEBALL COURTS AVAILABLE TO RESIDENTS AT TWO PARKS

Dubbed "America's New Favorite Sport," pickleball is one of the fastest-growing sports in the U.S. according to the USA Pickleball Association. Last November, it was even the center of a lighthearted feature by the Today Show in which TV hosts competed.

With its popularity growing in Richardson, one tennis court at both Woodland and Terrace parks now doubles as a pickleball court after pickleball lines were painted on the courts. Pickleball players must use the existing tennis net to play and while the courts remain available for both sports, tennis players are requested to keep the pickleballlined court available for pickleball play if another tennis court is open.

According to the USA Pickleball Association, the sport was imagined in Washington state in 1965 by two fathers looking to engage their families in quality time. More than half a century later, the sport has picked up steam broadly, and locally with games played weekly at both Heights and Huffhines recreation

The sport is a combination of tennis, ping pong and badminton. Participants use paddles that are smaller than tennis rackets. Gamespecific balls are akin to wiffle balls. Pickleball is commonly played on tennis courts, in badminton courts and in gyms.

Pickleball is played in singles or doubles on an approximately 20-foot by 44-foot court. The ball is served diagonally across a low net. Points are scored when the opposing side cannot return a ball or commits a fault. Typically, the first side scoring 11 points and leading by at least a two-point margin wins.

While the pickleball boom started primarily with senior citizens, its players span ages.

Participants can take lessons, play in rec center groups or reserve courts privately. The only thing they need to bring is a pickleball paddle—a paddle made of wood with a rubber coating. The rec centers provide the playing courts, nets and balls. At Huffhines, the games are played in badminton courts, and at Heights, in the gym.

"Pickleball is the kind of game that's easy, but it can be competitive too," she said. "It makes me feel like a kid again."

Heidi Scalice, Heights Recreation Center Manager, said, "Pickleball is the soft, cousin version of tennis, and a big version of table tennis. It's not stressful. People have a lot of Yet, it's still a great workout, Scalice said, offering cardio benefits and sharpening hand-eye coordination.

Along with the recreation and exercise, pickleball is a great way to make connections, with games offering a chance to not only exercise, but make new friends.

EISEMANN CENTER MANAGING DIRECTOR RETIRES EFFECTIVE SEPTEMBER 2022

Bruce MacPherson Eisemann Center Managing Director Retiring Sep. 30, 2022

Bruce MacPherson, Managing Director for the Charles W. Eisemann Center for Performing Arts and Corporate Presentations, has announced he will retire Sept. 30, 2022. His retirement wraps a 45year role in the field of performing arts, the last 22 of which will have been performed at the City of Richardson's Eisemann Center.

"In theater terms, I would say I've had a very good run and that I'm thankful for all the shows and people I've had the opportunity to work with," said MacPherson. "This September will mark the 20th Anniversary of the Eisemann Center's opening. I see this milestone as the appropriate time for me to step aside. I may physically be gone, but my heart, my soul and my love for the Eisemann Center will remain. I shall always be thankful for my time in Richardson and am truly grateful for having had the opportunity to play such a lead role with the Eisemann Center."

MacPherson has served as managing director of Richardson's Eisemann Center since January 2000. He helped oversee design and construction of the 117,000-squarefoot facility that features three performance venues, an art gallery, and concessions area. He has also managed a presenting series

(Eisemann Center Presents) of nationally recognized touring artists and attractions to the North Texas region. The facility is also centrally located and involved in Richardson's annual Wildflower! Arts & Music

"This is the end of an era," said Richardson City Manager Dan Johnson. "Bruce was an integral part of the Eisemann Center's design and construction, and he has played a leading role through the first 20 years of its operation. We are going to miss him very much and wish him all the best."

Recruitment Efforts

The City of Richardson will begin recruitment efforts in partnership with Arts Consulting Group this month to select a new managing director for the Eisemann Center. Selection of a successor should take place in late summer to allow for a smooth transition with MacPherson's retirement at the end of September.

WILD ANIMALS MORE ACTIVE THIS TIME OF YEAR

This is around the time wildlife the wildlife." animals such as coyotes and bobcats are most active in North Texas, which means residents may see an increase in sightings of these animals.

Bobcats and coyotes rarely pose a threat to people, but domesticated pets such as small dogs and cats could be at risk if left alone or taken off their leash near natural areas.

"They typically don't want to be seen by people, said Sam Kieschnick, Urban Wildlife Biologist with Texas Parks and Wildlife. "If you do see a coyote and a bobcat, its no reason for concern."

If pets must be kept outdoors, they should be kept in a secure fenced area, but experts say people should keep in mind that bobcats can climb trees and fences and can also jump up to 12 feet. Coyotes can jump over a five-foot fence.

"They are opportunist and will utilize whatever food or resources that are available," Kieschnick said. "So, when we leave out food for the outdoor cats or dogs, it attracts other critters including rats which attracts Wildlife are attracted to the rodents that come to eat dropped or spilled food and garbage. It's recommended that pets should be fed indoors, and bird feeders should be kept above an animal's reach. Garbage containers should also be secured.

"If you see a coyote or a bobcat, we recommend creating loud noises like clapping your hands or shouting to reinforce the natural fear they have,"

TRAFFIC CONTROL BOX CONTEST

WINNING ARTWORK WILL BE DISPLAYED AT FIVE LOCATIONS

The City of Richardson and the Richardson Kiwanis Club have teamed up to host Richardson's first-ever Traffic Signal Box Art Contest. Five original, wildflower-themed designs will be chosen and featured as vinyl wraps on traffic signal boxes at intersections throughout the community. The contest is open to artists of all ages who either reside in Richardson or attend a school located within Richardson.

"Art installations are a meaningful part of our city's identity, and the designs selected from our traffic signal box art contest will honor our community and welcome visitors," said Assistant City Manager Shanna Sims-Bradish. "The City is excited to share this opportunity that will recognize and showcase our local artists in a new and special way."

Richardson joins several cities locally and across the globe that have recognized the creative potential of the traffic signal box-numerous large, flat surfaces placed in high-traffic areas make it a perfect vehicle for displaying and viewing art (search for "signal box art" on the Internet to see numerous examples). Key intersections in Richardson scheduled to receive the winning box art include Renner Road and Routh Creek Parkway at the Spring Creek Nature Area, Yale Road and Apollo Road at Duck Creek Trail, Belt Line Road and Mimosa Drive at Richardson High School, Waterview Drive and Franklyn Jennifer Drive on the University of Texas at Dallas campus, and Renner Road at Telecom Parkway.

Sims-Bradish said the contest's wildflower theme was chosen to connect it with Richardson's identity as a "wildflower city," with its well-known vibrant floral displays seen in parks and medians each spring. Many of the intersections where the art will be on display are near annual wildflower median planting sites.

Artists wishing to participate may submit one original digital design aligned to the theme that can be easily converted to a digitally printed wrap that covers the entire traffic signal box. Designs must be:

- original artwork that does not include copyrighted or trademarked images, commercial logos or advertisements;
- free from any representation that includes traffic lights, signs or signal images of any kind; and

• appropriate for viewing by all ages.

Completed applications and artwork submissions are due by Monday, Feb. 28 no later than 5 p.m. A selection committee will review the submissions and select contest finalists based on creativity, adherence to the theme and artistic merit. Each selected artist will receive a $100 stipend, a plaque, and be recognized for their efforts in the City's communications materials.

The wraps are tentatively scheduled to be installed in April. For more information and an application, visit www.cor.net/boxart.

BLACK HISTORY MONTH AT THE RICHARDSON LIBRARY

Black History Month is celebrated each February, and the Library has several events and activities planned to commemorate the month.

The schedule kicks off with Tommy Terrific's Wacky Magic Show, which will focus on the Tuskegee Airmen. During this all-ages event, Tommy Diaz will use magic and amazing facts to teach people about the history of the Tuskegee Airmen, a group of largely African-American pilots and support crew who trained in Tuskegee, Ala. and served during World War II. The show will take place from 2-3 p.m. on Feb. 5 in the Library's basement program room.

The Library's popular Lunchtime

Lecture program also returns in February with a presentation from De-Cee Cornish entitled Great People of Color. Cornish is an award-winning storyteller, historian, writer and educator and will share stories of great men and women of color in world culture. Patrons are welcome to bring their lunches. The event is open to adults and teens and will be held from 11:30 a.m.-12:45 p.m. on Feb. 22 in the basement program room. No tickets or registration are required.

Additionally, the Library will have Black History Month displays on both the first and third floors, with books that were handpicked by Library staff and are available for checkout.

For more information about any of the Library's programs, call 972-744-4350 or visit www.cor.net/library.

ANNUAL CHLORINE MAINTENANCE

BEGINS MARCH 1-29 IN RICHARDSON, OTHER NTMWD CITIES

Water District (NTMWD) will be conducting its annual chlorine maintenance from March 1-29 to maintain the system and ensure high water quality. It's important to have this complete before summer because hotter temperatures can increase the potential for bacterial growth in pipes.

During this time period, people may be able to taste chlorine in the water. While the levels of chlorine in the water have not increased and

The North Texas Municipal are consistent with levels found throughout the year, the temporary removal of ammonia can make the chlorine more noticeable. The intensity of the chlorine taste and smell can depend on the distance you are from the water treatment plant.

Need for Disinfection

Water disinfection is required to protect public health and keep water safe. The NTMWD uses proven and highly effective disinfection methods to treat the water it delivers to Richardson and roughly 2 million North Texans.

During NTMWD's normal water treatment processes, disinfection is a two-step process that first treats the water at the plant and second adds disinfectant to maintain water quality as it travels long distances through pipes to homes and businesses. Both steps are needed to keep tap water free of harmful microorganisms, such as parasites and viruses.

Common Disinfection Practice

Many water providers that use chloramine maintain their systems using this same process. NTMWD has been doing this for more than 10 years, and high water quality has always been maintained.

Ongoing water testing required by the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality (TCEQ) is performed during the process and made available to the public. During the 2018 change in disinfectant, TCEQ conducted additional independent testing and confirmed that NTMWD surpassed all safe water requirements.

OZONE

ADDED

Here are some simple steps to minimize chlorine odor, taste or skin sensitivity:

- Run the tap for a few minutes before using.
- Refrigerate water in an open pitcher for several hours
- Add a slice of citrus/cucumber and let sit for several hours
- Add a crushed 1000 mg Vitamin C tablet to bath water. For more information, visit www. NTMWD.com/safewater.

SPAY AND NEUTER YOUR DOG OR CAT

It is estimated that 8-10 million animals are taken to animal shelters every year in the United States. Sadly, only half of them ever find homes. Spaying and neutering your pet is the best way to help prevent this strain on local shelters. Spaying or neutering is the only 100 percent effective way we can control the population of unwanted pets and ensure a decrease in the number of unwanted litters.

Beyond the immediate benefits of population control, spaying and neutering helps dogs and cats live longer, healthier lives. It can eliminate or reduce the incidence of a number of health problems that can be very difficult or expensive to treat. Spaying eliminates the possibility of uterine or ovarian cancer and greatly reduces the incidence of breast cancer, particularly when your pet is spayed before her first estrous cycle. Neutering eliminates testicular cancer and decreases the incidence of prostate disease.

Help spread the word about spaying and neutering! Every little bit helps! One unspayed female dog and her offspring can produce over 67,000 dogs in seven years. and that figure is many times more for a female cat and her offspring. Richardson Animal Services thanks you in advance for being a responsible pet owner by spaying or neutering your pets.

For more information and do see a listing of reduced cost spay/neuter programs, visit www.cor.net/Animalshelter.

REMEMBER TO REGISTER YOUR PETS EACH YEAR

The City of Richardson currently requires all dogs and cats to be vaccinated against rabies and registered with the Health Department each year. This registration tag could save your pet's life. According to the Humane Society of the United States, animals found with identification tags are 90 percent more likely to be reunited with their owners than those not wearing tags. This simple pet registration tag allows the Shelter staff to identify the pet owner, the pet and sometimes most importantly your veterinarian. This is especially helpful if a pet is found injured and needs immediate medical care.

Registration fees are $5 per year for sterilized pets and $10 per year for unsterilized pets. Registration for pets owned by senior citizens (65 and older) is free.

Registrations can be purchased at the Health Department office (411 W. Arapaho, Room 107), at the Animal Shelter (1330 Columbia Dr.), online at www.cor.net/ animalshelter or by mail. If you have any questions, please contact the Shelter staff at 972-744-4480.

Free ID tags and collars

The Richardson Animal Shelter is now placing collars and ID tags on all pets adopted from the Shelter. The collar and a personalized tag are free with adoption, but anyone can purchase collars, leashes and tags at the Shelter.
